May, 1914. In 1873 Miss Emily Platt, a niece of President Hayes, became the bride of General Russell Hays. The next White House wedding was that of President Cleveland and Miss Frances Folsom. President Cleveland was the only president who was one of the contracting parties in a White House marriage.
 President Wilson has two other unmarried daughters and his term runs more than three years yet. There may be one or more White House weddings before it expires.

THE HUNTER MACHINES.
 New York city aside, the capital party "machines" seem to have had more prosperity in this year's municipal elections than the states. It was so in Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Louisville, and a number of smaller cities one even heard of said backslidings in Grand Whitlock's Toledo. In Philadelphia the concentrated and organized "North American" is now trying to load the blame upon good Mayor Blankenship. He "alienated" independent councilmen, it says; he didn't get the citizens the street car promised to them; and he suggested municipal taxes on occupations, manufactured goods and household furniture. To be sure, he found a big deficit, and cities can't be run indefinitely on empty treasuries. True, too, it is alleged, that he installed honesty and efficiency in the city hall. But the citizens who have to work for a living forget all about that when new taxes were proposed, says the Philadelphia expositor.

FORTUNES IN SAUSAGES.
 Westphalia, in Prussia, is the home of the sausage. There, it is said, a trader will name no fewer than 400 different kinds of sausage. A sausage exhibition was held recently in Germany at which 1,000 varieties of sausage were shown.
 In this connection a story is told of a young Prussian who, though he had received an expensive training as a chemist, shut himself up in his laboratory, and instead of devising a new dye, safety match, motor engine, explosive, aeroplane or photographic lens, took pork, veal, olives, pepper, fenel, old wine, cheese, apples, cinnamon and herrings' ropes, and from the evolved a wonderful and totally original "wurst," the best of its kind. He has amassed a considerable fortune from its sale.

CLEARING THE ATMOSPHERE.
 Vincent Astor has picked a winner. Her mamma admits it, and when a woman finally consents to be the mother-in-law of so many millions she is likely to stick to the bargain. It is good to have this young man settled for life, says an exchange. It removes him as the objective point of many maidens and gives the other fellows a chance. The New York matrimonial market has been at a standstill ever since Vincent became the greatest catch of his city. Now that he is safely mortgaged the stock of other eligibles may be expected to advance.
 The Santa Fe Chamber of Commerce, the archaeologists and others formally disapprove the recent report that Dr. Edgar L. Hewett is guilty of the heinous and unspakable crime of being a joke. But even if Dr. Hewett were a joke, he has nothing on a number of persons—and institutions—in the picturesque and ancient city of the holy faith.

USELESS INFORMATION.
 There are 3,547 people in Albuquerque who will postpone their Christmas shopping until December 24.
 A rabbit that grows in Van Diemen's land is said to have five whiskers on the left side and only four on the right.
 There are four million grains of sand to the cubic inch in the bed of the Rio Grande. The man who counted them now rooms next door to the violent war.
 The average man smokes 5,999 cigars in a year. Of these 6,786 are given to him by traveling men and four by preachers.
 The cigarettes smoked by an habitual smoker in a year if placed end to end would extend from an undertaking establishment in San Francisco to a cemetery in Ogallala, Iowa.
 Confirmed milk drinkers often drink 4,556,789 gallons of milk in a lifetime, or enough milk to cover Socorro county to a depth of eight feet.
 In Yuma county, Arizona, a cactus grows which has spines so long they are used by the natives for fishing poles and batons.
 Eight miles of perfectly good roads were built by Kurnel Sellers in the White mountains in eight minutes last summer.
 The latest series of names for Pullman cars are so long that they have to be painted around the end of the car and back up the other side.
 If all the trees in the world were one big tree and all the oceans and all the axes were one big axe and all the men one big man and if the man would take the axe and cut down the tree and it would fall into the ocean, it would make a considerable splash.
 A professional humorist in Melbourne, Australia, was lynched in four and a half seconds by a stop watch which is believed to hold the time record in such events.
 AWFUL—it is reputed the Thanksgiving turkey-eaters are going on a hunger strike.

JABS In the Solar Plexus.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN was taking his constitutional walk up University hill one afternoon when a man ran across him along driving a muley-looking horse. "Don't you know better than to drive that poor horse up Hill so fast?" said the good old man. "Up hill, is it?" said Tim, with a wise smile. "Oh, begorry, wot's the difference? The nag's blind, and he can't see it."

A BOY'S ESTIMATE—The wisest man on this here earth is paw; he knows a thousand times as much as me. The neighbors don't know near as much as he. He's full of knowledge as he can be. He knows just how the housework should be done, and how this glorious country should be run. He knows exactly how many coats to dress and he's certain he can do it for much less.—Field and Farm.

THE DELAWARE representative who quoted the Bible to show that the convicts ought to be whipped on their bare backs has nothing on many other scripturally inclined gentlemen who can find in the Old or New Testament divine warrant for anything from stealing chickens to voting the Democratic ticket.

WASHINGTON don't know exactly what it is going to do or what Huerta is going to do, but it is nevertheless pleased, optimistic, gratified and vindicated by whatever turn events will likely take. Nothing like having a disposition like that, what?

ORHAUGHNESSY feels confident of success. Ochsne, an old eye lever bear up a man vid that name being troubled wid cod feet?

THAT FELLOW John Doe simply must be a degenerate, low down, depraved and hopeless cuss.

IF DIPLOMACY is the art of saying nothing well, Mr. Bryan is rapidly rounding to one of the greatest diplomats of the age. He is becoming so guarded in his speech, indeed, that he will scarcely make a casual reference to the weather.

THE ENGLISH Suffragette policy is being adopted by the administration in Mexico. "Don't hurt her" is the cry.

THE WHITE HOUSE wedding is but two weeks away and the president is doubtless facing more than one sort of financial trouble just now.

OWED TO SALLY.

(Respectfully dedicated to the apologists of Pankhurst.)
 My Sally she came home one night, She'd been to a woman's meet, She looked so nice and rosy I gave her kisses sweet.

With flashing eye, "stand off," she cried;
 "I'll have no more of that.
 If you longer play such baby tricks
 The fire will burn the fat."

"My freedom's won from home affairs,
 I'll scrub and kiss no more.
 I'll help to make the laws and vote,
 And talk the wide world o'er."

I stood aghast, with lowering brow,
 And thought that I would brow.
 "Oh, Sally, dear, you have not gone
 And mixed with vile Pankhurst?"

Let her remain where she belongs,
 Among her crazy fans,
 And once again we love our home
 And let the cats "go hang."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY.

MANUEL, EX-KING OF THE PORTUGUESE, 24 TODAY.
 Young Dom Manuel, the ex-king of Portugal, whose alleged matrimonial infelicities have lately been aired in the press, will pass his twenty-fourth milestone today. The youthful scion of the House of Braganza—which, by the way, was founded back in 1400 by an illegitimate son of the last of the old line of Portuguese rulers—is now said to have patched up whatever difficulties he may have had with his rich wife, who was Princess Augusta of Hohenzollern. She is alleged to have recovered from the mysterious malady with which she was stricken soon after her marriage to the exiled monarch.

When Manuel was served with a dispossession notice by the Portuguese republicans and ousted from the royal palace in Lisbon three years ago, he immediately began a search for a wealthy bride who might enable him to recover his throne. He found the object of his quest in the Hohenzollern princess, after he had been refused by many other young ladies of royal blood. It is a coincidence that Manuel was born on the very day that another Braganza, Dom Pedro II, was deposed from the throne of Brazil. The crownless king is very popular in London, where he has spent much of his time since he was invited to leave his country for his country's good.

Louis Freeland Post, assistant secretary of the United States department of labor, will celebrate his sixty-fourth birthday today. If he has time, which is altogether unlikely, The distinguished disciple of Henry George and preacher of the "single tax" is one of the busiest men in Washington. He formed the habit of industry during his long career as a journalist. He was born in Vienna, N. J., and started life as a printer in New York. Later he was admitted to the New York bar. But he abandoned the law to become editor of the New York Daily Truth, and later of the Daily Leader, the Henry George campaign organ. For fifteen years he has preached the George-Post doctrine of economic salvation in the columns of the Public, published in Chicago.

Most young men who have inherited large fortunes devote considerable time and money to sewing wild oats but William Vincent Astor—the William is silent—although the possessor of a hundred million dollars or so, apparently prefers the tame variety of oats. He has commenced the agricultural regeneration of Dutchess county, the seat of his ancestral estate, by introducing among his neighbors a new and improved variety of oats. Mr. Astor is twenty-two years old today, and is the son and heir of the late John Jacob Astor, who was lost on the Titanic. The young multi-millionaire is the greatest matrimonial catch in America, but up to date he has manifested no special inclination toward any favored maiden.

FIRST THINGS

FIRST WIRELESS MESSAGE.
 The first wireless message sent from a ship at sea was dispatched from the American liner St. Paul to the Needles fourteen years ago today, November 15, 1899. The vessel was then sixty-six miles from the land station. The wireless was first used in saving lives early in 1903, when Jack Bliss sent out his memorable call for help from the stricken White Star liner Republic, after her collision with the Florida off Nantucket. Later in the same year help summoned by wireless resulted in the rescue of 150 people from the steamer Ohio off the coast of Alaska. After that hardly a month passed without a demonstration of the utility of the wireless in the saving of lives. The Canadian government steamer Stanley was warned of the presence of icebergs by a message from the Grenfell station on the Labrador coast, and had barely been brought to when a berg was sighted in the fog. The Canadian cruiser Niobe, which went on the rocks off Cape Sable in 1911, also summoned help by wireless. The Titanic disaster and the burning of the Volturno afford more recent and spectacular examples of the beneficence of Marconi's great invention.

EDUCATION NOTES.

A "Society for the Instruction of Eugenics" recently founded in New York already has 200 members. One Idaho county has more than 250 boys and girls organized in sewing, cooking, potato and corn club work.

Juliet, Ill., aims to get rid of delinquents in its schools by putting the boys too big for their classes into a special class in charge of a man teacher of forceful personality.

"In Edinburgh" says Sir James Grant, "the impression is gaining ground that physical culture comes before the humanities, and hygiene is reckoned of greater importance than higher mathematics."

When an epidemic of cholera is raging in the Philippines, the authorities do not close the schools to avoid contagion. They keep them open as centers of hygienic information for preventing the spread of the disease.

The Massachusetts state board of education maintaining a teachers' registration bureau for teachers desiring positions in Massachusetts. In the past year, the first of its existence, the bureau filled 83 positions at salaries ranging from $2,700 down to $10 per week.

FOREST NOTES.

There is a flourishing forest school in the Philippines, and 28 men were graduated with the class of 1913.

The so-called Scotch pine is the principal tree in the Prussian forests.

Its wood is much like that of the western yellow pine of the United States.
 In general it may be stated that the most dangerous forest fire periods in the west are in middle and late summer; in the east they are in the spring and fall.
 Because of the importance of forestry at the annual conservation congress in Washington, November 13 to 15, an extra day is added to the sessions, Monday, the 17th.
 It has been suggested that guayana, a very hard wood of Central America, may furnish shuttle blocks to supplement dogwood and postolmen, now most used, and in danger of becoming exhausted.
 Under forest regulations in Colombia, rubber sappers are required to give the trees a rest period in taping them for gum. The size, number, and location of the incisions are regulated by law. In the United States similar regulations are in force in the tapping of pines for turpentine on the Florida national forest.
